

Bully Busters: A Teacher's Manual for Helping Bullies, Victims, and Bystanders
By: Arthur Horne and Dawn Newman
Research Press: Champaign, IL, 2000

The Bully Busters program was developed by researchers from the University of Georgia in collaboration with a local middle school. Bully Busters provides both new and veteran teachers with a useful combination of current research on the issue of bullying as well as practical ways to prevent and control bullying behavior. Bully Busters includes a comprehensive approach that covers changing individual behavior to addressing environmental issues that may inadvertently be supporting bullying. Most notably, the manual exposes myths about bullies and their victims and provides structured classroom activities as well as a variety of ways to implement the program within a school setting.

--Reviewed by Kay Mulhall, Center for Prevention Research, and Development